Administrative history

The Yukon Law Society's primary duty is to serve and protect public interest in the administration of justice and to preserve the rights of all persons in the relationship between members and clients. Its focus is threefold: to consider, discuss and take action in all matters pertaining to the practice of law and the administration of justice in Canada generally, and in the Yukon Territory; to represent the legal profession in the Yukon Territory; and to establish or adopt and to enforce appropriate Codes of Legal Ethics in the Yukon Territory.

The Yukon Law Society serves its members by offering Continuing Legal Education classes, informing practitioners of legislative decisions, coordinating insurance coverage, and organizing social events. It recommends guidelines for legal fees and establishes rules regarding the administration of trust accounts which clients have entrusted to their lawyers. Complaints against members of the legal profession are investigated by the Discipline Committee of the society.

The executive of the Yukon Law Society consists of no less than six members, four elected from the resident membership and two non-members appointed by the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory. The executive positions have been President, Vice-president (Admissions), Vice-president (Discipline), Secretary, and Treasurer. Every lawyer practicing in the Yukon must maintain membership in the Yukon Law Society.

The first executive members were Erik Nielsen, President; Robert W. Miller, Secretary; and Allan R. Lueck, Treasurer.

The Yukon Law Society has administrative relationships with the Yukon Law Foundation and the Canadian Bar Association - Yukon Branch.

Established in 1970, the Yukon Law Society was originally called the Yukon Bar Association; the name officially changed in 1971. By 1992 the name had been changed to the Law Society of Yukon.

Inventory to the Yukon Law Society fonds

Scope and content

The fonds consists of records of the Yukon Law Society, 1971-1992, including correspondence, minutes, financial and personnel records, reports, sound recordings of a conference, and reference material.

The records document the creation, development and operation of the Yukon Law Society, and are arranged into the following series: Administrative records; Executive records; Financial records; Personnel / Membership; Yukon Law Foundation; and Canadian Bar Association - Yukon Branch.

Title notes

Title based on name of the society at the time the predominant number of records were created.

Arrangement

The series and sub-series were determined by the archivist based on the file plan provided by the Yukon Law Society.

Immediate source of acquisition

Donated by the Yukon Law Society in 1988, 1989, 1990 and 1993. A group of files received in 1990 were added to accession 88/122 in November 1990. The sound recordings in accession 89/11 were recorded by Yukon Archives staff with permission from the Yukon Law Society and individual speakers.

General notes

Discipline files, previously listed in the Yukon Law Society finding aids printed in June 1994 and March 1995, were removed due to privacy issues and returned to the Law Society of Yukon in 2014. As a result, files COR 971 f10, f11 and f13 and COR 995 f7 are no longer located at Yukon Archives.

At a later date, it was determined that some documents in the files were printed on the backs of other unrelated documents in an effort to reuse paper. Some of the recycled paper contained solicitor / client information. The side of the page without the solicitor / client information was photocopied, placed in the file, and the original document was returned to the Law Society of Yukon in 2018.

The sound recordings of the conference were recorded by staff of the Yukon Archives, with permission of the Yukon Law Society and the individual speakers.

Published material (PAM 1989-0011) has been transferred to the Yukon Archives Library.

Other formats

The sound recordings in accession 89/11 were digitized as Production Masters for access in February 2011.

Access restrictions

There are no donor-imposed restrictions on this material. General copyright or institutional or legal restrictions may apply.

Finding aid

Inventory to the Yukon Law Society fonds held at the Yukon Archives, May 2018.
Content listing for the sound recordings is available.

Accruals notes

Further accruals are expected.

Financial assistance

The production of this finding aid has been made possible by financial assistance from the federal government through the National Archives of Canada, the Canadian Council of Archives and the Yukon Archives.

Administrative history

The Yukon Law Society offered Continuing Legal Education through the Canadian Bar Association. The 1989 Continuing Legal Education Conference was on "The Constitutional Status of Yukon". Its Open Forum, featured the Government Leader, Tony Penikett and Leader of the Opposition, Willard Phelps, during a territorial election campaign.

Scope and content

The sub-series consists of records arising from educational programs that the Yukon Law Society was involved in, including the Continuing Legal Education (CLE) program sponsored by the Canadian Bar Association. Included is correspondence, class lists, evaluation forms, course outlines, scholarship applications, requests for library purchases, and a report "Professional Legal Training in Australia".

Also included are sound recordings of the presentations delivered at the 1989 Continuing Legal Education Conference, "The Constitutional Status of Yukon". Speakers gave legal, historical and political perspectives on the comparison of Alaska and Yukon constitutional development, the Meech Lake Accord and implications for the Yukon, Yukon's claim to have crown status, native rights, and the future of Yukon's constitutional status.

Legal aid. — 1972-1988.

Physical description

0.115 m of textual records.

Administrative history

The establishment of the legal aid plan in Ontario in 1967 altered the concept of legal representation for the poor from one of "charity" to one of "right". The remaining provinces and territories followed suit and the Yukon Territory established a Legal Aid Act in 1976. A tariff of fees was introduced in the Yukon to provide lawyers acting under legal aid certificates with reasonable remuneration. At this time the Yukon Legal Aid Board consisted of six members, three appointed by the Commissioner of the Yukon Territory and three appointed by the executive of the Yukon Law Society. Lawyers volunteered their names for legal aid service; Social Services later opened the Legal Aid contract for tender.

Scope and content

The sub-series consists of Yukon Law Society correspondence, memos, questionnaires, ballots of Yukon Law Society members, rosters of lawyers participating in legal aid work, reports, fee schedules, newspaper clippings, legislation, and minutes of meetings regarding Legal Aid.

Federation of Law Societies of Canada. — 1982-1990.

Physical description

0.07 m of textual records

Administrative history

The Federation of Law Societies was incorporated in 1972 to study matters of essential concern to the legal profession in Canada, and to increase cooperation and dialogue among governing bodies of the legal profession. The Federation assumed two main responsibilities: to operate as a forum for the exchange of views and information of common interest to the governing bodies; and to improve the general public's understanding of the legal profession in Canada.

As an umbrella group for provincial and territorial legal societies, the Federation offers Continuing Legal Education courses in subjects of current national interest and discusses problems in competency, discipline, errors and omissions insurance, compensation funds, legal aid programs, Bar admission programs, and matters affecting the independence of the profession.

The executive consists of five elected members (President, Vice-president, Past-president, Secretary-Treasurer, and Co-ordinator of Continuing Education). As a matter of practice, the directors each represent one of the five regions of Canada, namely, the Maritime Provinces, Quebec, Ontario, the Prairie Provinces, and British Columbia. The membership of the Federation consists of two representatives from each of the governing bodies appointed by such governing bodies. The directors of the Federation are also members. Each of these persons has the right to exercise one vote and may appoint any other member as his or her proxy.

The Federation is financed by an annual assessment on each governing body based on the number of active members each year.

Scope and content

The sub-series consists of Yukon Law Society correspondence with the Federation of Law Societies of Canada, and the Federation's annual meeting minutes, reports, bylaws, compensation survey results, and transfer payment survey results. Also included are reports from the Yukon Law Society and Canadian law societies.

Administrative history

Membership in the Yukon Law Society was voluntary until a revision in the Legal Professions Act (1985) made membership compulsory for all individuals practicing law in the Yukon Territory. Membership is open to all lawyers admitted to the Bar in Canada or who have articulated for 12 months in the Yukon. Many individuals living outside of the Territory choose to retain non-resident membership. All members in good standing pay annual fees and, in return, receive courses in Continuing Legal Education, notices of meetings of interest to legal professionals, group insurance, information regarding legislation, and the right to elect the society's executive. The Yukon Law Society keeps records of its members' appointments to Boards as well as regulating members through its Discipline Committee.

Scope and content

The series consists of the personnel and membership records of the Yukon Law Society. Included is correspondence, legislation, fee schedules and membership lists. The records are arranged into the following sub-series: Admissions; Appointments; Court personnel; Discipline; Fees; and Membership lists.

YUKON LAW FOUNDATION. — 1979-1987.

Physical description

0.175 m of textual records

Administrative history

The Yukon Law Foundation was established in 1979 to administer the interest earned on the trust accounts of the Yukon's resident barristers and solicitors. Its first undertaking was to reimburse the public for any losses caused through misappropriation or wrongful conversion of property by a lawyer. The Foundation solicited and reviewed claims against the indemnity fund. Payments were subsequently made from the fund.

The Foundation also permits grants for legal education and research, law reform and the publication of information about the law, and the establishment and maintenance of law libraries.

The executive of the Yukon Law Foundation consists of a president and five other members. The first executive was composed of Ron Veale (President) and members Donald Kidd, W.G.N. Egbert, W.B. Kelly, E. Walters and P. O'Donoghue. The first administrative secretary was Vicki Hancock.

1 photograph : col. print (Kodak paper) ; 17 x 10.5 cm

Administrative history

The Canadian Bar Association is a national association for legal professionals whose stated aim is to facilitate the administration of justice in Canada. Unlike the rules governing membership in the Yukon Law Society, membership in the Canadian Bar Association is voluntary and attorneys are free to practice law without being a member of the Bar Association.

The Canadian Bar Association seeks to increase knowledge and understanding of the legal system, deliver legal services to the public and participate in the actual reform and improvement of laws through parliamentary submissions and lobbying. Branch presidents attend semi-annual meetings in cities across Canada.

Each province and territory has a branch of the Canadian Bar Association. In 1979-1980, the Yukon Territory was the last jurisdiction to form a branch. The first president was Ronald S. Veale, followed by Donald Kidd. The first concern of the new Yukon branch was to promote continuing legal education and public legal education.
