Central registry files

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series consists of central registry files of the Yukon Territorial government containing correspondence, reports and memoranda created by federal officials charged with the responsibility of administering the Yukon Territory. The records include original incoming correspondence and copies of outgoing information prepared by the offices of the Commissioner, Gold Commissioner, Comptroller, Registrar and the other agents and officials who managed the affairs of the Territory. These files provide a rich source of information on such subjects as doctor's fees, taxes, homestead land, local elections, roads, the fire department, surveys, schools, mining claims and methods, Indian reserves, postal service, dance halls, gambling, churches, missions, telephones, wireless, courts, permits, ordinances, licenses, hospitals, timber lots, the cost of living, steamships, sewer systems, northern defence, scientific expeditions, customs, aviation, floods, individual companies, diseases, sports, tourism, water diversion, the White Pass and Yukon Railway, cemeteries, the North West Mounted Police, saw mills, and farming, among others.

The central registry system consists of a series of sequentially numbered files. There appears to have been two registry series although a gradual changeover from the main series to the second series occurred under the administration of the Department of Mines and Resources. An overlap of dates indicates this transition period. It was often difficult to determine to which series a particular file belonged. For example, file 466 on the Alaska Highway, which is in the main series, may properly belong in the second series. Conversely, file 20 on Waterfront Leases in Dawson, which may belong in the main series was placed in the second series. (RG91, reels M-2826 to M-2874)

Main series of numbered files

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Sub-series contains registry files ranging from number 3 to 36601. It should be noted that a large portion of these files concern applications for purchase or lease of land in the Yukon Territory. (RG91, Vols. 1-64; reels M-2826 to M-2873)

Second series of numbered filesSCOPE AND CONTENT:

Sub-series contains six registry files which have duplicate file numbers or appear to belong to a second registry. The outside dates of these files do not fit into the chronology of the main series therefore they were arranged separately. (RG91, Vols. 65-66; reels M-2873 to M-2874)

Subject filesSCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series consists of subject files whose principle subject are: welfare, public health, customs, communications, territorial promotion, land entitlement, postal service, immigration, surveying, timber berths, steamship wood reports. In all likelihood, these files were part of the registry system. Over time these files have been reorganized on a subject basis so that the original registry numbers are no longer identifiable. A single file may contain individual documents stamped with six or more file numbers. It was decided to maintain the present subject arrangement and to incorporate loose correspondence and forms into these files. For reasons of simplicity, other closely related types of records were placed within the series. For example, collections of applications were placed with the subject files; bound volumes of copies of regulations and judgments were placed within the register index series. Applications for town lots in Dawson

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series consists of applications made to the Agent of the Dominion Lands for town lots in Dawson during the Spring of 1898. These applications take the form of a standardized letter to the agent listing the applicant's name, the town lot, a list of improvements made on the property, if any, and often a promise to construct a proper outhouse with a night soil box on the property.

The files in this series, in all likelihood, were part of the registry system. Over time these files have been reorganized on a subject basis so that the original registry numbers are no longer identifiable. A single file may contain individual documents stamped with six or more file numbers. It was decided to maintain the present subject arrangement and to incorporate loose correspondence and forms into these files. For reasons of simplicity, other closely related types of records were placed within the series. For example, collections of applications were placed with the subject files; bound volumes of copies of regulations and judgments were placed within the register index series. (RG91, Vol. 74; reel M-2882)

Applications for liquor licenses

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series consists of applications which were submitted by individuals or trading companies seeking permission to obtain a license to sell liquor, to obtain a hotel, or to transfer or renew these licenses. The Yukon Territory Act of 1898 invested in the Commission power to license shops and saloons. This proved to be one of the largest sources of income for the territorial government. The application included an inspection report, usually prepared by a North-West Mounted Police Officer. The report describe the establishment [some include a rough sketch] and offer recommendations as to whether the license should be granted. A covering letter from the officer to the license inspector and receipts sent to the application by the inspector are also found on file. The applications are filed alphabetically by name of applicant and a listing is provided in the finding aid.

Files to be reviewed under the Access to Information and Protection of Privacy Act are indicated by an asterisk [*]. If the review has been completed, the result is noted: *o = open, *po = partially open, or *c = closed.

In addition to the application the end of this series contains miscellaneous document obtained by the Chief Inspector of Licenses. Subjects include drunkenness charges, and the illegal importation of liquor. There are also various certificates and declarations. These documents have been arranged by name of person or company involved.

Application for marriage licenses

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series consists of records received by the Issuer of Licenses. Each application was assigned a number for which the following have survived: 159, 172, 193-1000. There are also three unnumbered applications at the end of the series. The application contains the names and ages of both parties.

Office of the Commissioner

BIOGRAPHY/ADMINISTRATIVE HISTORY:

Major J.M. Walsh of the NWMP, was appointed the first commissioner of the Yukon (PC 2468, 11 August 1897). The Commissioner (the equivalent of the Lieutenant-Governor in the older North-West Territories) administered the District with a six-person appointed Yukon Council, that included the Judge of the Territory, the Gold Commissioner, the Registrar, the Legal Advisor, and the Superintendent of the NWMP in the Territory. The Commissioner reported to the Deputy Minister of the Department of the Interior. The records in this series, covering the period from 2 October 1899 to 23 September 1902, were created during the tenure William Ogilvie and James H. Ross. William Ogilvie was appointed Commissioner by Order-in-Council in 1898 (PC 1775, 1 July 1898). James H. Ross became the Territory's third Commissioner, his appointment being made on 11 March 1901 (PC 544, 11 March 1901). As a result of the resignation of Ross in 1902, Major Z.T. Wood was appointed acting Commissioner (PC 542, 16 October 1902). Wood was replaced in 1903 when Frederick T. Conglon was appointed Commissioner (PC 306, 4 March 1903).

SCOPE AND CONTENT:

Series contains letterpress copies of outgoing correspondence from the Office of the Commissioner, covering the period from 2 October 1899 to 23 September 1902. The correspondence reflects the wide range of legislative powers assigned to the Commissioner and may deal with such issues as taxation, the management of prisons, municipal institutions, licencing, company incorporation, marriages, the protection of both property and civil rights, the administration of justice, the spending of funds earmarked for territorial purposes and education. APPENDIX 1: Yukon Archives Introduction

A. NUMBERED FILES

1894-1951, 49 feet 4 inches, Volumes 1-9 (new numbering system) & Volumes 6-66 (old numbering system).

The registry system of the Yukon Territorial Government was one in which files were numbered consecutively as each was created.

1. Numbered files, main series, 1894-1951, 48 feet, Volumes 1-9 (new numbering system) & Volumes 6-64 (old numbering system).
 - Registry files ranging from 6 to 36601.
 - Within this series there are many files concerning applications for purchase of land.
2. Numbered files, second series, 1899-1949, 1ft. 4 inches, Volumes 65-66.
 - Registry files ranging from 20 to 3525.

B. SUBJECT FILES

1897-1949, 8 feet 4 inches, Volumes 67-76.

This series of subject files consists of the many files which cannot be identified with a registry number or the many pieces of correspondence and forms that have been grouped together under subjects. The principal subjects are: Public Health, Customs, Communications, Territorial Promotion, Land Entitlement, Post Office, Immigration, Surveying, Timber Berths, Wood Reports, Steamships, etc.

Within these subject files are included three types of applications for which additional finding aids were prepared. They include:

1. Applications for Town Lots in Dawson, 1898, 4 inches, Volume 74.

These applications made to the Dominion Lands Agent for land in Dawson are arranged alphabetically by names of applicants. A listing is available which gives the name of the applicant, date of the applications, and the Lot-Block indication in each case.

2. Applications for Liquor Licenses, 1898-1901. 9 inches, Volume 75.

Applications from individuals or trading companies seeking permission to obtain a license to sell liquor, to obtain a hotel license, or to transfer or renew these licenses.

With these applications there are:

- Inspection reports, usually by N.W.M.P. officer, describing the establishment and recommending whether the license should be granted. A rough sketch sometimes accompanies the description.
- Covering letters from the police officer transmitting the inspection report to the license inspector.
- Receipts to the applicant from the license inspector.

- The applications are arranged alphabetically by names of applicants and a listing is provided.

At the end of the series there are miscellaneous documents to the Chief Inspector of Licenses. Subjects include drunkenness charges, and the importation of liquor. There are also various certificates and declarations. These documents have been arranged by names of persons or companies involved and a listing has been provided.

3. Applications for Marriage Licenses, 1901-1915. 7 inches. Volume 76.

Applications for marriage licenses made to the Issuer of Licenses, 1901-1915. Each application, which indicates the names and the ages of both parties, was assigned a number and they are arranged numerically from 193-1000. At the beginning of the series are two applications numbered 159 & 172, and at the end of the series are three unnumbered applications.

SERIES 2: CENTRAL REGISTRY FILES - INTRODUCTION

The files in Series 2 span fifty-two years and a wide range of subjects. These files were sent to the Public Archives of Canada with other central registry files in 1959 and 1968 (see introduction to Series 1). They were returned to the Yukon Archives and not included in RG 91 or micro-filmed because they contained exempted records and other material not considered to be of significant national importance. The files in this series are however very interesting to those pursuing the study of Yukon history.

Subjects found in the files of this series include: estate files, files on the insane, appointment of government officials, criminal, civil and Gold Commissioner court cases, applications for land, adoption of children, sternwheeler taxes, forest fires in the Yukon, dental registration, road maintenance and crews, building maintenance, government directives, letters of credit, Yukon Territorial Government financial estimates, information on government employees, liquor licenses, information on individual companies, mineral claims, Dawson Coat of Arms, taxes, schools, Ogilvie Bridge, World War I, American Women's Club, fur farms, elections, U.S. Geological Survey, information re: war veterans, Western Labour Board & International Labour Conference, family allowance payments, unemployment insurance, Air Transport Board, Whitehorse playgrounds, sanitary inspector reports as well as other miscellaneous files.

The file list follows.

SERIES 3: YUKON GAME BRANCH – INTRODUCTION

Files in Series 3 are the records of the Game Branch and pertain to wildlife management in the Yukon Territory from 1898 - 1950.

Series 3 was stored in the first Yukon Government Record Centre located in the basement of the Casca Building in Whitehorse. These files were turned up during the first Yukon Government Records Management Inventory Program conducted during the early 1970's.

Some of the file numbers in this series reflect the central registry numbering system while others reflect a new numbering system employed by the Game Branch. This new numbering system was probably instituted because the Game Branch was housed apart from other Yukon Territorial Government offices in the T.C. Richards Building from the 1950's until 1976 when the new Yukon Government Building was opened.

Subjects covered in Series 3 include: monthly reports from fisheries inspectors, game file correspondence, game hunters licenses, muskrat farming, returns by game guardians, guides, etc., Yukon trapping licenses, wolf and coyote bounty, fisheries regulations, buffalo reserve, leasing of land for fur farming, appointment of game officers, Yukon Fish and Game Association, migratory bird regulations, permits to set out poison, big game hunters in the Yukon Territory, and other miscellaneous files.

SERIES 4: CENTRAL REGISTRY FILES – INTRODUCTION

Series 4 files were stored in the Records Centre in the basement of the Casca building in Whitehorse before being transferred to the Yukon Archives in 1976.

This series of files was probably brought to Whitehorse in 1953 when the government moved from Dawson. Some may have been renumbered on arrival as many files bear what is probably an old central registry number as well as a number from a new filing system.

Some of the subjects included in this series are: information on schools in the Yukon Territory, trading post permits, Yukon Council correspondence, Yukon Council Journals, Yukon Council elections and petitions, Yukon Territorial Ordinances, road maintenance, Whitehorse and Keno City assay offices, Whitehorse Board of Trade, hospitals, information on Conrad, game management files, information on individual companies, voters lists for Yukon Council elections, appointment of government officials, tax lists and assessments, mineral claims, Moose Hall - Dawson, statistics - Dawson, scarlet fever, liquor licenses, estates, wood contracts, child welfare, family allowance, unemployment insurance, Workmen's Compensation, plebiscite re: Whitehorse Incorporation, business licenses, Yukon Government invoices, and other miscellaneous files.

SERIES 5: WHITEHORSE AGENT – INTRODUCTION

Series 5 was transferred from the basement of the Federal Building in Whitehorse to the Yukon Archives by Tom Retallack who was working with the Federal Lands Office.

The files in this series are apparently the records of the Government Agent in Whitehorse who reported to the Commissioner. These files are definitely not part of the Central Registry series of files. The Government Agent acted as the Mining Recorder, Land Agent and Territorial Agent and his files had their own numbering system.

Subjects included in this file series are: land applications, hay permits and grazing applications, fishing licenses, commission to be paid to police, Indian reserves, applications for coal lands, waterfront leases, information on government employees, correspondence re: railway to Dawson, list of N.W.M.P., old Whitehorse Cemetery, dredging leases, stamp register, Hootalinqua books and papers, Indian School at Carcross, mineral claims, Miles Canyon Water Power - Yukon Smelting Co., law stamps, water rights, White River Records, repairs to Fire Hall, South African Volunteers - Land Certificates, Fox Farm statistics, B.Y.N. Co. - Central Dam on Lewes River, agricultural possibilities at Kluane, correspondence with mining recorder offices, quartz crown grants, annual general reports, live ammunition firing and operations dangerous to the public, maps and distribution, general information on timber and land, companies - general, operating in the Yukon, and other miscellaneous topics.

SERIES 6: WHITEHORSE MINING RECORDER – INTRODUCTION

The files in Series 6 were obtained from the office of the Whitehorse Mining Recorder. They had been stored in the basement of the Federal Building in Whitehorse.

The earlier files in this series were probably part of the central registry system. The old central registry numbers appear in round brackets () in the inventory listing which follows.

Some time after the government moved from Dawson to Whitehorse in 1953 a new numbering system was set up in Whitehorse. The date when this new system was adopted is unknown. The Whitehorse Mining Recorder's file numbers appear in square brackets [].

Series 6 is composed largely of Yukon quartz mining files. The file numbers on these files are prefaced by Y.Q.

Other subjects included in Series 6 are: Yukon Consolidated Gold Company plans of power lines and ditches, water power grants, placer mining regulations, quartz regulations - grants and renewals, dredging regulations, hydraulic concessions, coal mining regulations, early placer rulings, mining complaints, royalty export taxes - weekly statements, geological, geophysical and geochemical reports, Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act, failure of Bonanza Creek dam, placer registered documents, correspondence - mining recorders and inspectors, survey of mineral claims, British Yukon R.R. Copper Belt Spur Line, gold dust confiscated, Dawson Miners Union, Strikes, Agreements, quartz royalty and ore shipments, and files on other miscellaneous topics.

Whitehorse Mining Recorder's records appear in square brackets [].

Yukon Quartz files are prefaced by Y.Q.

History of the Game Department

As early as 1902 the Yukon Council passed an Ordinance intended to help preserve the Territory's game. Responsibility for game preservation lay directly with Yukon's chief executive (first the Commissioner, later the Gold Commissioner, and still later the Controller). This continued to be the case until the late 1940's.

The influx of armed forces personnel during the Second World War placed heavy pressure on Yukon's game resources. The Territorial Agent in Whitehorse played an increasingly important role in administering game regulations and policies.

In 1949, unfavourable publicity in "Look" magazine focused on the poor enforcement of Yukon's game legislation. Later the same year Them Kjar was brought in from Alberta to serve as Director of the newly formed Game and Publicity Department. This department's responsibilities centred on the development and administration of a game policy for the Territory. This included supervising guide / outfitters, licensing trappers, collecting fur export taxes, issuing hunting licenses, and controlling predators.

The Department of Game and Publicity was officially established by a 1951 amendment to the Public Service Ordinance. In 1953, the publicity function was dropped from the department's title, a function that never seems to have comprised much more than corresponding with sportsmen outside Yukon.

The department grew steadily during the post-war period. In the year of its inception it was voted a budget of $12,000. By 1971 its budget stood at more than $101,000. In 1972 the Game Department was merged with the Department of Travel and Information, and the Yukon Regional Library, forming the Department of Tourism, Conservation and Information.

History of the Records

Most of the records in this series date from the time of the Game Department's creation in 1949, up to its incorporation in the Department of Tourism, Conservation and Information twenty-three years later. The files, in almost every case, were un-numbered and were maintained outside the government's Central Registry. An alphabetical / subject system provided the organizational basis for the files.

This series of records was received at the Yukon Archives in May 1982, through government record scheduling channels. They arrived in record boxes, stored in a manner that confirmed they had been organized alphabetically when last in use. When received, the records occupied 5.33 metres of shelf space. Over a period of three months, the records were appraised, selected, arranged and listed. Their bulk was reduced to just under two metres. The following criteria were used to select materials for permanent retention:

- to document the policy and decision making processes of the Game Department;
- to document the growth and development of the Game Department, as well as its changing roles, procedures and functions;
- to document the department's management of the game resource, and the history of industries based on this resource;
- to document activities in remote Yukon districts.

For archival purposes, these records have been arranged in five parts. The first part consists of the department's alphabetical / subject files. The second includes the Director's out letters, and the third part comprises a set of wildlife maps. A sampling of departmental outfitter files, and a sampling of enforcement officers' occurrence reports constitute the last two sections of Series 9.

A notation appears in the listing wherever sampling was employed to reduce the bulk of a group of files. This was most often used when files covering a period of several years contained similar material judged to be of low informational value. Generally an attempt was made to retain materials from each year represented, and to retain materials reflecting the annual flow of work. The outfitter files, however, were subjected to random sampling, with one file in five being retained.

File titles are, for the most part, those that appeared on the original file jackets. Descriptions of files are usually those that were prepared by the department when the records were inventoried.

For further information on the original arrangement of these records, the researcher is referred to Vol. 2 File 12 in this series, which deals with the Game Department's internal filing arrangements.

RESTRICTIONS

For reasons of personal privacy, the sampled Outfitter Reports and the Occurrence Reports have been restricted. They will be made accessible to the public thirty years from the date of closing of the most recent file in each section. For the outfitter Reports this will be 2009, and for the Occurrence Reports, 2007.

OTHER SOURCES OF INFORMATION

Information on game regulation and management is contained in several Yukon record series. Foremost among these is Series 3 in Yukon Records Group I. This contains the main run of records pertaining to fish and wildlife matters from the period preceding the establishment of the Game Department, and is an invaluable source, covering the years 1898 – 1950. INTRODUCTION – PLACER MINING RECORDS IN YUKON

Placer gold drew increasing numbers of prospectors and miners to the North during the last quarter of the nineteenth century. Most came from the United States, and brought with them American concepts of self-administered mining camp law.

Canadian authorities gradually accepted the necessity of imposing Canadian mining regulations in Yukon, and in 1894 Inspector Charles Constantine, NWMP, was sent to take up residence at the settlement of Forty Mile on the Yukon River. He was appointed “Agent of the Dominion Government”, and was charged with administering the mining regulations of the North West Territories. These dated back to 1889, and had been designed for application on the prairies.

During the years that followed, many confrontations developed between local miners, officials on the spot, and politicians in Ottawa regarding the scope and content of Yukon’s mining regulations. At stake were the prosperity of individual miners, as well as the level of government revenues to be derived from mining.

Between 1894 and 1906, Yukon mining regulations were frequently altered and adjusted by Federal Order-in-Council. In some cases regulations were changed up to three times in a single year, in an attempt to satisfy the demands of the mining community, and still provide sufficient levels of government revenue. In 1906 a Yukon Placer Mining Act was approved by Parliament. This was amended in minor respects in subsequent years, however its provisions have remained the basis of placer mining law in Yukon up to the time of writing (in 1983).

During the Klondike Gold Rush federal Ministers of the Interior exercised control over four main variables in their efforts to devise equitable mining regulations for Yukon. These dealt with:

- The size of placer claims and the fees and procedures for registering claims
- The fees and procedures for renewing placer claims and registering their successive ownership
- The levying of royalties on placer gold
- The registration of miners through Free Miners certificates

The size of placer claims was of central importance to miners, as this largely determined the extent of the economic base to which a miner could gain access. Claim size varied greatly as the table below shows:

Table 1. Length of Creek Claims 1889-1906

Date of Regulation	Length of Claim
1889 (NWT Regulations)	100 feet
Dec. 24, 1894	500 feet
Aug. 16, 1897	100 feet
Jan. 18, 1898	250 feet
Jul. 31, 1905	500 feet
1906 (Yukon Placer Mining Act)	500 feet

The regulations provided for larger discovery claims, and also prescribed the fees to be charged for registering a claim. At the height of the gold rush, provisions were even made to reserve certain claims by the crown for sale at auction. Grouping claims and granting hydraulic concessions was a practice that proved highly controversial in the early years of the century.

After registering a placer claim, the miner was entitled to work the property for one year, at the end of which certain conditions had to be met in order to continue to mine. At first only an annual claims renewal fee was charged. At different times this was as high as $100 and as low as $15. In 1898, however, the Certificate of Work was introduced, a concept which was refined in the years that followed. Generally it required a miner who was renewing, to file an affidavit verifying that $200 worth of work had been done on the claim in the past year.

Over the years a detailed fee structure evolved, under which Mining Recorders charged for a wide range of additional services. The regulations for 1902 even authorized mining recorders to charge 25¢ for giving out information verbally. The fee structure continued to be adjusted until it was enacted into legislation in 1906, from which time it has remained largely unaltered (as of 1983).

The mining recorder was also responsible for collecting royalties on gold productions. A ten percent royalty was first levied in 1897, with a twenty percent royalty due on gold taken from claims producing in excess of $500 a week. Royalties were unpopular and difficult to collect, and were reduced over the years.

The twenty percent surtax was removed in 1898, as were royalties on claims producing less than $2,500 a year. This exemption was raised to $5,000 in 1901, when the rate of royalty dropped from ten to five percent. The Placer Mining Act of 1906 reduced the royalty to only two and one-half percent, and placed the onus for payment on the shipper exporting the gold from the Territory. In estimating the royalty payable, gold was to be valued at $15 an ounce. These provisions were still in force at time of writing (in 1983).

Another means of regulating and deriving revenue from the mining industry was through a licensing system. In 1898 the regulations introduced a requirement that all persons and companies involved in mining must have a Free Miners Certificate, which authorized its owner freely to engage in mining. The cost was $10 a year, though by 1905 this had been reduced to $7.50 for the first, and $5 for subsequent years. Higher fees applied to mining companies. The Yukon Placer Mining Act of 1906, however, abolished the Free Miners Certificate.

Other matters with which placer regulations have dealt include the grouping and relocation of claims, the assignment of water rights, and the abandonment of claims. Special hydraulic and dredging regulations have also been put into force over the years to control larger scale mining. Since 1970, the Northern Inland Waters Act has superseded some sections of the Yukon Placer Mining Act, controlling the allocation of water rights for placer mining today (as of 1983).

The Act of 1906 provided for the appointment of mining recorders for each mining district in the Territory. The Act ordered, and still requires (as of 1983), these officials to maintain all documents relating to mining property and to keep the following books:

- 1) Records of Applications
- 2) Record of Refused Applications
- 3) Record Book
- 4) Record of Abandonments
- 5) Record of Documents Received

The earliest placer mining records still in existence date from 1896. Prior to devolution, mining records were maintained under the auspices of the federal Department of Indian and Northern Affairs. In the early 1970s the historic significance of these records was recognized and arrangements were made to organize and microfilm non-current mining records and to transfer originals to Yukon Archives for permanent retention.

The present organization of these records reflects, as closely as possible, that devised for them at the time they were microfilmed. Under this system, placer records were divided into eleven subject classifications (I-1 to I-11) and two miscellaneous groupings (I-12 & III). For the most part, the records have been assigned the headings under which they appeared in the microfilm, even when these headings seem to have been assigned incorrectly. In order to clarify such errors, certain records have been listed twice, once under the category assigned at microfilming, and again under what appears to be a more correct heading. Only one miscellaneous heading has been retained.

The records listed in this inventory have not been assigned an accession number by Yukon Archives, with the exception of accession 81/41 (GOV 365 f1) and accession 91/75R (GOV 365 f2). This inventory was formerly known as Inventory to the Records of the Yukon Government fonds Series 10, Mining Recorders Records (Placer) 1894-1972 held at the Yukon Archives.

Yukon Archives provides public access to the mining records in its custody. These records have proven a valuable source to genealogists and environmental researchers, as well as representing a major source of information concerning past and possible future resource use in Yukon. I-1 APPLICATIONS FOR GRANTS FOR PLACER MINING, 1896-1971

In order to obtain a placer mining grant, a miner had to stake the ground intended to mine and record the claim at a mining recorder's office. This was done by completing an application form which included such information as the miner's name, address, Free Miners Certificate number, when and where the claim was located, as well as its size. Occasionally a sketch map accompanied the application, particularly after 1940.

Applications were given consecutive numbers. Between 1896 and 1900, series of numbers were frequently used more than once.

There were three means of locating a particular application within I-1. Daily registers were kept of grant applications received at mining recorders' offices. These registers are listed in section I-2, and are mainly chronological in organization. Records were also kept of every change in ownership that took place on individual claims. These books, organized by creek, are listed in I-7. A record was also maintained of the first miner to obtain the grant of a newly staked claim. These alphabetically arranged volumes are listed in I-8.

The following list has been prepared showing the various series of numbers used on grant applications, the years they were used, and the Yukon Archives location in which they are stored:

I-2 RECORDS OF APPLICATIONS FOR PLACER MINING, 1896-1934

This section contains three main types of records. They were all compiled to provide access to the Applications for Placer Mining Grants contained in section I-1.

Most volumes in series I-2 are registers, detailing information about particular numerical blocks of grant applications. The volumes usually give the applicant's name, the date and the claim applied for, all in the order the applications were received.

Some of these volumes are arranged geographically by creek and claim number, including some copies of creek record books that were later incorporated in the record books listed in section I-7.

Books described as "re-locations" record transactions in which a claim forfeited or abandoned by one miner is taken up by another.

I-3 REGISTERED DOCUMENTS (PLACER MINING), 1897-1971

Most documents pertaining to the ownership of placer claims were registered in the mining recorders' offices. Included were liens, mortgages, assignments, and bills of sale. These documents were given consecutive numbers when received, with some series of numbers being used more than once.

There are two ways of obtaining access to documents in I-3. Daily registers of placer documents received were maintained by mining recorders. These are mainly organized chronologically and appear in I-4. Record books were also maintained listing all documents registered that affected a particular claim. These records are organized by creek and claim number and appear in I-7.

The following list has been prepared showing the various series of numbers used in registering documents, the years they were used, and the Yukon Archives location in which they are stored:

I-4 RECORDS OF PLACER DOCUMENTS RECEIVED, 1896-1961

These records have been divided into two main categories. The first encompasses numerical / chronological registers of legal documents dealt with by the Mining Recorder's Office. The documents referred to are usually those located in section I-3.

The second category of records consists mainly of registers of assignments. These volumes are similar in many respects to the Record Books kept in section I-7. They are concerned with the sale and mortgaging of mineral claims, and refer to documents in I-3.

Among other records included in this section are alphabetical registers of those buying and selling interests in claims, and alphabetical registers of those granting and receiving power of attorney.

I-5 RENEWAL GRANTS FOR PLACER MINING, 1906-1972

The Yukon Placer Mining Act required miners to renew their claims annually. In order to accomplish this, the miner had to file an affidavit indicating how much work had done on the claim in the previous year. The miner was then given a certificate of renewal.

This section contains duplicate copies of renewal certificates. These documents contain little significant information, and are arranged in numerical / chronological order. Series of numbers were sometimes used more than once.

In some cases affidavits were filed with the renewal certificates. These affidavits give details as to work undertaken during a particular year.

The best access to the certificates of work is through the Record Books in section 1-7. Renewal numbers for claims are listed there by creek and claim number.

A list of the renewal grants follows.

I-6 CERTIFICATES OF WORK FOR PLACER MINING, 1898-1906

Before the passage of the Yukon Placer Mining Act, a variety of requirements were brought into force that made it incumbent on a miner to spend certain amounts of money on the claim each year in order to renew ownership of it.

This section contains duplicate copies of the certificates renewing the miner's ownership of the claim. These documents contain little significant information and are arranged in numerical / chronological order. Series of numbers are used more than once, and some certificates are un-numbered.

In some cases affidavits were filed with renewal certificates. These affidavits give details as to work undertaken during a particular year.

The best access to the certificates of work is through the Record Books in section I-7. Renewal numbers for claims are listed there by creek and claim number.

I-7 RECORD BOOKS FOR PLACER MINING CLAIMS, 1895-1971

This important group of records comprises more than two hundred books giving access by creek and claim number to many of the other classes of records that were maintained by the Mining Recorder. Generally, each major placer creek had one or more books that contained a page for each claim that was laid out on the creek. The books recorded the various transactions, owners, mortgages, liens, renewals, etc., that were registered against each claim. Entries that were made often cross referenced such items as applications for grants (I-1), registered document numbers (I-3), certificates of renewal (I-5), and certificates of work (I-6).

At first it was thought that about ten record books would be enough, but the amount of business necessitated that additional books be incorporated into the system. It was not long however until these too were full and another set of books was required. So it is quite conceivable that in order to trace the history of a claim, a researcher would have to consult at least three bound ledgers.

The middle of a book was reserved for the first or discovery claim on a creek and all other registered claims were then numbered 1, 2, 3, etc., either above or below discovery and entered before or behind the middle page depending on where they were situated in relation to discovery. Occasionally separate books were maintained for claims registered above and below discovery. Books recording claims above were numbered and known as black indexes, claims below being kept in numbered red indexes. Those books that recorded claims above and below discovery, were assigned both a red and a black index number. Right and left limit, refer to the right or left bank of a creek when looking down stream.

When these records were microfilmed in the early 1970s they were each assigned a single consecutive number. These numbers serve as the main GOV location identifier in the list that follows.

The more complex red and black index system is also listed in this section. Also available is the Index to Creeks and Tributaries from the Yukon Archives Finding Aids webpage. It provides an alphabetical listing of creeks and tributaries on which placer claims were registered. The index links each creek or tributary to its main creek or river. The location, outside dates of claim information and the Yukon Archives location for the book or books relating to each tributary are also provided.

I-9 INDEXES OF FREE MINERS CERTIFICATES, 1898-1906

The names of all miners purchasing Free Miners Certificates were recorded in alphabetically arranged index books. Most certificates were issued in Dawson. At various times, however, it was possible to buy these certificates in cities in southern Canada, as well as at offices located in local Yukon communities. These indexes noted the miner's name, certificate number, and the issuing office.

This important group of records contains the names of nearly all stampeders who engaged or hoped to be engaged in mining.

Arrangement: Alphabetical by name of miner unless otherwise noted
Coverage: Dawson area or Yukon generally unless otherwise noted

I-10 ROYALTY LEDGER BOOKS, 1898-1909

These ledgers were maintained to record the royalty paid on gold production. Royalties were most important before 1901 when an increase in the allowable exemption made this tax inapplicable to the vast majority of miners.

Royalty Books list such information as quantity of gold mined, value of production, exemption allowed, and royalties paid. The title of each book states the geographic coverage of the volume. Where more detailed information as to coverage is listed, this has usually been drawn from the book's table of contents.

Arrangement: By creek and claim number unless otherwise indicated

I-12 MISCELLANEOUS PLACER MINING RECORDS & III MISCELLANEOUS MINING RECORDER RECORDS, 1895-1972

These records do not appear to fit in any of the other sections of placer mining records. They include records of hydraulic and dredging leases, trust account receipts, and a record of auction sales of government claims.

Note: In 2016, additional records were added to this section. The added records appear to have been missed in earlier versions of the inventory.

II QUARTZ MINING RECORDS

Yukon quartz mining records were microfilmed along with the Territory's placer mining records, and these records were transferred to Yukon Archives at the same time as the placer mining records. The quartz mining records (GOV 858 – GOV 930) however have not been listed in this inventory, though a separate interim inventory of the records is available (Canada. Dept. of Interior. Mining Recorder. Series 10 Hard Rock Quartz Mining Books). A few quartz mining records however are listed within the placer mining records section.

SERIES 11: TERRITORIAL COURT RECORDS - INTRODUCTION

Approximately a thousand miners were searching the tributaries of the Yukon River for gold in the mid-1880s. At this time, the Yukon was under the legal jurisdiction of the North West Territories, though because of its remoteness, the influence of an established court system was not felt. The prevailing form of law and order was the miners' meeting, a form of justice used by the predominately American miners in the area.

Inspector Constantine of the N.W.M.P. was sent to the Yukon in 1894, and he wrote of these meetings: "The American miners meetings had the power of life and death over the members of the community. It could hang a man, give him a divorce, imprison, banish or lash him." Any prospector could call a meeting simply by posting a notice. An elected chairman performed the function of judge, while the entire meeting acted as jury. Both sides could produce witnesses and state their case. Anybody who wished could ask a question or make a speech. The verdict was decided by a show of hands.

In June 1895, Inspector Constantine returned to the Yukon with a force of eighteen men and managed to abolish the miners' meetings and establish his authority. In his report for that year he noted that civil courts were urgently required to settle disputes. With the influx of population following the discovery of the fabulously rich Klondike gold deposits in August 1896, the federal government became more interested in establishing law and order in the area.

The Canadian government appointed T.H. McGuire as Judge of the Court of the Yukon Provisional District in August, 1897. The Yukon Act of 1898 established Yukon as a separate territory, and changed the judicial structure by replacing this court with a superior court of record styled after the Territorial Court, which could consist of one or more judges. It provided that judicial procedure and administration were to conform as closely as possible to the practices found in the North West Territories. The Commissioner, Territorial Councillors, and commissioned officers of the North West Mounted Police were to possess the powers of one or two justices of the peace. The Act also specified the residence, tenure, oath of office, and rights and privileges of the judges. The power, authority, and jurisdiction of the court were to be the same as those of the court of the North West Territories. A judge of the court could not hold any other office or emolument under the Government of Canada.

In 1899 an amendment to the Yukon Act constituted the Supreme Court of British Columbia as a Court of Appeal for the territory. In May 1901, a further amendment provided for the appointment of a police magistrate at Dawson and at Whitehorse. These positions had jurisdiction in cases of theft, claims of debt, breach of contract and other personal actions where the amount claimed did not exceed $500. The Territorial Court retained jurisdiction in respect of actions for gambling debts, liquor offences, recovery of land, wills, libel, slander, and other more serious offences.

T.H. McQuire resigned as the Yukon's first judge just three months after his appointment. He was replaced by C.A. Dugas on October 7, 1898. In March of 1899, the Yukon Bar Association petitioned the federal government for two more judges because of the large number of cases awaiting trial. Two more judges of the Territorial Court were in fact appointed, the Hon. James Craig and the Hon. C.D. Macaulay.

Until 1912, the Territorial Court comprised three judges, and it was possible for appeals to be made from the decision of a police magistrate, to the Territorial Court en banc. This was defined in 1903 as being at least two of the three Territorial Court judges.

In 1912, an amendment to the Yukon Act reduced the number of Territorial Court judges to one. Judges Dugas and Craig left the Yukon. Judge Macaulay remained in office until his retirement from the Bench in 1940.

The Territorial Court records date from 1897 to 1950, and include Cases, Court Notebooks, Estates, Judges' Notebooks, Trial Judgements, Arguments, Appeal Books, and other miscellaneous records. They were originally received in a number of accessions. Cases were received in Accessions #77/6 and #83/23; Estates were received in Accession #79/114. Some unaccessioned and miscellaneous records are also included in this Finding Aid. Certain Court Notebooks and Judges' Records are cross-referenced from YRG 1 Series 8. In most cases, records were received in no apparent order. It was necessary to rearrange cases, estates, and other documents to correspond with the order indicated by original file and docket numbers. All records were retained. The Territorial Court Records comprise eight linear metres of archival storage space.

Some of the files are restricted. These contain personal information. Researchers will be granted access to material specifically relating to themselves. Researchers wishing to conduct blind statistical studies of information contained within these files may apply in writing to do so.

Funding for the organization of these records and the compilation of this funding aid was provided by the Canadian Council of Archives and the Yukon Archives under the C.C.A.s Arrangement and Description Backlog Reduction Cost Shared Cooperative Program. This Finding Aid was prepared by Nancy Cameron.

This section comprises case files (or dockets) which contain such documents as subpoenas, depositions, summonses, testimony, exhibits, and judgements.

Territorial court cases were originally received in two accessions, #77/6 and #83/23, and were organized in several systems. This original organization has been maintained in the listings which follow.

1. Annual / Sequentially Numbered Cases 1898-1950

The first listing contains cases which were assigned two-part numbers. The first number is a consecutive number assigned chronologically to cases heard in that year. Not all cases seem to have been assigned this number. The second number represents the year in which the case was heard.

2. Un-numbered Cases 1900-1908

3. Sequentially Numbered Cases 1900-1905

Many Territorial court cases between 1900 and 1905 were assigned consecutive case numbers that did not include a reference to the year the case was heard. This listing includes cases which were numbered consecutively over several years. It should be noted, however, that there is a gap of case numbers between 1902 and 1903. This possibly indicates that there were changes made in the system of assigning case numbers at that time, and that a subsequent series was begun.

B. COURT NOTEBOOKS 1898-1908

These volumes contain hand-written notes (some in shorthand) of court case proceedings. They appear to have been kept by the court reporter, and were the rough notes from which the final typed case proceedings were prepared. Several of these court notebooks are contained in Series 8 of the Central Registry Files (YRG 1). These have been cross-referenced in the listing below.

C. ESTATES 1897-1950

In the Yukon, no court of probate existed apart from the Territorial Court. It was in this court that wills were proved and Letters of Administration were issued.

This section contains individual estate files, which comprise the documentation required for the administration of an estate. These include wills, releases and transmission applications to transfer real property, certificates of administration, affidavits of relationship, and deeds to effect the transfer of real property, mining claims, chattels, and other assets. Some estates comprised more than one file, while some files contained documents pertaining to two estates. Estates were numbered consecutively. After 1947, it appears that a new numbering system was started. These records were received as Accession #79/114. A few estate files are also found in the Annual / Sequentially Numbered Cases. See cases 11/38 (GOV 1429 file 8), 10/46 (GOV 1430 file 18) and 1/47 (GOV 1430 file 19).

Several types of judges' records are contained within the Territorial Court records. These include Judges' Notebooks, Trial Judgements, Arguments, and Appeal Books.

1. Judges' Notebooks 1898-1911

These volumes contain hand-written notes made by judges during and after court proceedings. They were apparently used by the judges in arriving at decisions regarding verdicts in cases. Most of these notebooks appear to be those of Judge C.A. Dugas who was the senior judge in the territory from 1898 to 1912. Some of these volumes are cross referenced from YRG 1 Series 8.

SERIES 12: TERRITORIAL TREASURER RECORDS - INTRODUCTION

This collection contains records relating to the establishment and early years of operation of the Yukon Health Insurance Services, together with administrative records of the territory's hospitals from the early to mid-1960s. The collection also includes records relating to the Territorial Treasurer's responsibility to collect certain property taxes, as well as his role as the person supervising the accounting functions for the Yukon Government. These records were, for the most part, either generated within the Territorial Treasurer's office, or sent to his office by local hospitals for accounting purposes.

Within his responsibility for the Yukon's financial affairs, the Territorial Treasurer directed the development and operation of the health insurance system, and the financial administration of Yukon's hospitals. Before 1961, individuals were mainly responsible for defraying the costs of their own hospital care. Hospital insurance developed to pay these costs for individuals, and became an area of close co-operation between federal, provincial, and territorial governments.

From 1957 on, most hospitals in the Yukon had become the responsibility of the federal government. Only the hospital at Mayo remained under territorial control, because of local resistance to the federal government's expressed intention to reduce it to the status of a nursing station. In 1961, the Mayo General Hospital too was incorporated into the federal system, as a hospital.

The Yukon Health Insurance Service (Y.H.I.S.) came into existence on July 1, 1961 to provide hospital insurance for all residents of the Yukon Territory. Its three objectives were: to relieve territorial residents of the burden of hospital costs; to assure hospitals of payment for services rendered; and to raise standards of hospital care.

Y.H.I.S. provided hospital insurance for Yukon residents without cost, as long as they had lived in Yukon for ninety days. The Yukon Government administered the plan. The federal Department of National Health and Welfare took responsibility for the standards of nursing, equipment, and medical aspects for the Yukon's three hospitals (Whitehorse, St. Mary's in Dawson, and Mayo). The terms of reference for the Y.H.I.S. were embodied in three documents:

- The Yukon Hospital Insurance Services Ordinance, Ch. 2, Ordinances of the Yukon Territory, 1960, First Session
- Regulations respecting the Hospital Insurance Services Ordinance (Commissioner's Order 1960-35)
- A memorandum of agreement between the Government of Canada and the Government of Yukon drawn up under the provisions of the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act of Canada.

During the fiscal year 1961-1962, the Y.H.I.S. passed from its developmental stage to full operation as one of the twelve plans (provincial and territorial) which together formed the framework for a national plan of health services. That same year, representatives of the Y.H.I.S. attended three inter-provincial committee meetings, to coordinate arrangements for the keeping of statistics, bookkeeping, and shift schedules. For the fiscal year 1963-64 the Commissioner could report: "The operation of this service has been satisfactory during the year under review and it is possible to say that costs were lower than for the previous year. This was due largely to satisfactory control of the use of hospital facilities chargeable to the Service".

Meanwhile changes continued in the provision of health services within the territory. In 1962, the remaining territorial health care responsibilities (programs dealing with tuberculosis, cancer, venereal disease, medical care to indigents, and mental health) became federal responsibilities under a new five-year health agreement. As Janet Moodie Michael has written, "The role of the Yukon Government was reduced to a bookkeeper paying the bills submitted by Ottawa". St. Mary's Hospital was taken over from the Sisters of St. Ann by the territorial government in August of 1963. Watson Lake Nursing Station was reclassified to Cottage Hospital status in April of 1966.

The Territorial Treasurer's office was also responsible for the general supervision of the Yukon government's revenues and expenditures. The office collected property taxes in areas not included within municipal boundaries. This series of records includes several assessment rolls relating to that function. Also included are accounts journals used to allocate revenues and expenditures to various account codes. Trial Balance sheets from 1962-63 are also included.

This collection was acquired from a storage room in the basement of the Federal Building in Whitehorse in 1983. It was accessioned by the Archives as #83/64, and originally comprised about 4 metres.

When received, these records were arranged in broad groupings. One grouping appeared to relate specifically to the operation of the Y.H.I.S. Another contained files specifically detailing the administration and operations of the individual hospitals in the territory. Another grouping included miscellaneous financial records. A final grouping was comprised of government reports and other imprint. Within these groupings, however, there was no apparent order. The original categories have been retained, while their inclusive files have been organized in a manner that will facilitate research. The government reports and imprint material were transferred to the Archives Library.

Of the 4 metres of records originally received, 2.6 metres have been retained for permanent preservation. Every attempt has been made to retain documentation concerning the establishment of Yukon Health Insurance Services, and the operation of Yukon's hospitals. In some cases, routine financial records have been discarded or sampled, retaining where possible data from years ending in "1" or "6". In some cases, January and July were used as sample months. Detailed information relating to individual patients was usually sampled if it was recorded in an anonymous form elsewhere. Documents that refer to individual patients have generally been restricted as containing personal information.

All Property Assessment Rolls have been retained for permanent retention. Some routine records concerning such matters as sewer and water charges, vehicle maintenance, and contract administration have been disposed of.

Relevant published items received with this collection have been transferred to the Archives Library. A listing of these forms a part of this finding aid.

Some of the files in this collection are marked "R" indicating that they are restricted. These contain personal information. Researchers will be granted access to information about themselves. Researchers wishing to conduct blind statistical studies may also be granted access to these files.

Funding for the organization of these records and the compilation of this Finding Aid was provided by the Canadian Council of Archives and the Yukon Archives, under the C.C.A.'s Arrangement and Description Backlog Reduction Cost Shared Cooperative Program. This Finding Aid was prepared by Nancy Cameron.

A. YUKON HEALTH INSURANCE SERVICE RECORDS 1960-1967

These records pertain to the establishment and early operational years of the Yukon Health Insurance Service. They include statistical and financial files kept by the Territorial Treasurer's office concerning the individual hospitals in the territory as well as Y.H.I.S. operations as a whole. Also included are correspondence files of the Y.H.I.S.

1. Statistical and Financial Files 1960-1967

1.a. Hospitals 1961-1967

These records document costs of patient care in the territory's hospitals. Included are Daily Rate Charge Sheets, Statistical Returns Monthly, and Hospital Rates and Charges files.

Statistical Returns Monthly present monthly and accumulated accounts of Y.H.I.S. days, non-Y.H.I.S. days, patient days, numbers of patients, out-patients treated, and revenues. All Statistical Returns Monthly for all hospitals have been retained.

Daily Rate Charge Sheets were maintained by the hospitals to record patients' names, length of hospital stay, and charges payable to Y.H.I.S. The information in these records was then summarized in the Statistical Returns Monthly. Sample Daily Rate Charge Sheets have been retained for Whitehorse General Hospital for 1961, and for Mayo General Hospital for 1966 to correspond with census and mid census years. Daily Rate Charge Sheets are restricted because they contain personal information.

Hospital Rates and Charges files contain information on rate increases for all hospitals. All those received have been retained.

In most cases these records originated in Yukon hospitals and were sent to the Y.H.I.S. in order to claim payments under the hospital insurance system.

1.b. Y.H.I.S. Operations 1960-1967

These records present financial and statistical information related to the establishment and operation of the Yukon Health Insurance Service as a whole. All financial statements and cost statements are included. Hospital Insurance (HI) and Hospital Services (HS) forms prepared for the Department of National Health and Welfare are also listed below. These were submitted to the federal government to obtain payments for health costs. These forms record information related to monthly statement of payments, estimated number of insured residents, cost of in-patient services, and statements of hospital costs, facilities, and services.

Files concerning claims of Indians hospitalized in other provinces contain data relevant to the development of native health care. A file of miscellaneous forms has been retained. Restricted records containing personal information are indicated.

These files contain original correspondence with local hospitals and with federal departments and provincial agencies concerning the early years of operation of the Y.H.I.S. The records of the Medical Referee Service of the Department of National Health and Welfare (and later the Department of Northern Affairs & Natural Resources) have been retained only for 1965. These contain rulings as to whether questionable claims were to be accepted or rejected. No Referee Service records for regular sample years (1961 or 1966) were received. B. HOSPITAL ADMINISTRATION 1960-1967

This section includes administrative records from the various hospitals around the Territory. The records of St. Mary's Hospital, Dawson and Mayo are particularly well represented here. Most of the records are of a financial nature, such as bank statements and budget papers. Also included are some minutes of staff meetings and annual returns to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics (D.B.S.), and the Department of National Health and Welfare (D.N.H.W.).

The records in this section were apparently sent to Whitehorse where financial statements were prepared. These statements are also included in this section.

Routine financial information such as cancelled cheques and invoices were generally discarded, and some records of limited informational value were sampled to reduce bulk and still provide insights concerning hospital operations. Where available, January 1964 and July 1965 were chosen as sample months. The following listings are arranged by hospital.
