

Fast flying things

Dark-eyed Junco

One of the most common birds seen in summer.
Distinct white feathers on outside of tail.

Yellow Warbler

It's bright yellow, so you'd think you would see it more often.

Wilson's Warbler

Just like the Yellow Warbler, but males have that adorable black hat.

Yellow-rumped Warbler

The "Myrtle" sub-species that has a white throat.

White-crowned Sparrow

Rather plain except for those zebra stripes on its head.

Pine Siskin

Mostly brown, but with a yellow tint.
Can decimate bird feeders.

White-winged Crossbill

Males = red; females = yellow.
Bill looks deformed but is specially designed for opening seeds.

Pine Grosbeak

Similar colours to crossbills, but it's big and fat with a chunky bill for crushing seeds.

Common Redpoll

Both sexes have red caps, but only males have a pink chest.

Black-capped Chickadee

Easiest call to mimic. Seriously, it's just "chic-a-dee-dee-dee". Try it.

Boreal Chickadee

Just like the other chickadee, but with brown.
Still super cute.

Red-breasted Nuthatch

Lands on the sides of trees, facing downwards.

Mountain Bluebird

Makes use of human-made boxes for their homes.
It's blue, so it kind of stands out.

Ruby-crowned Kinglet

Little tiny bird with a big song.

Bohemian Waxwing

Eats the fermented berries on ash trees, which sometimes get them a little tipsy.
