FONDS DESCRIPTION

Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. — 1974-1997, predominant 1983-1987

Physical Description:

3.75 m of textual material — 1563 photographs — 4 architectural drawings

Administrative History:

In April 1974 fifty-two people from all over the Yukon Territory and northern BC gathered at the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts conference, held in Whitehorse at the Yukon Indian Centre, to discuss the formation of a society aimed at fostering the growth of traditional arts and crafts, through training, research and marketing.

A temporary advisory committee of fourteen delegates - eleven from the Yukon communities of Burwash Landing, Carcross, Carmacks, Dawson City, Haines Junction, Mayo, Old Crow, Pelly Crossing, Ross River, Teslin and Whitehorse and three from the northern British Columbia communities of Atlin, Lower Post and Upper Liard - was chosen to select and advise the board members.

Ann Smarch, Ray Jackson, Annie McDonald, Stanley Peters and Minnie Joe were selected as the interim and later confirmed as the first Board of Directors for the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society (YIACS). The Society had several well defined aims. These included providing a market for craftspeople from all Yukon communities, supplying them with raw materials at a reasonable price, and encouraging fine art development. In 1975 the five were re-elected along with Clifford Geddes.

In 1978 the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society (YIACS) was designated to represent the Yukon in the National Indian Arts and Crafts Cooperation (NIACC). The society established Yukon Native Products, the retail division; and the Yukon Native Production Centre, the manufacturing division.

In the late 1970s the retail division of YIACS opened small craft shops in the Yukon communities of Whitehorse, Dawson City, Haines Junction, Carcross, Carmacks and Mayo but due to a shortage of capital and trained management only the Whitehorse store survived beyond the first few years.

In addition to the crafts, home-sewn parkas were also offered for sale. As the demand for parkas increased a building at 120 Galena Road in the Kwanlin Dun Indian Village was utilized as a production centre for sewing parkas. Although not an industrialized factory in the real sense this facility did help bring about better co-ordination for sourcing parkas for Yukon Native Products.

At the sixth annual conference held June 17, 1979 the Society discussed the benefits of becoming a Limited Cooperative rather than a Society. The latter could not go into business ventures whereas a co-operative could make a profit for the people. The importance of self sufficiency was recognized, and recommendations from accountants and other professional groups led to a constitutional change, by which the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society gave way to Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd.

The co-operative was incorporated June 3, 1980 with a mission statement, "Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Cooperative (YIACC) shall be a viable business owned by Yukon native shareholders which produces and markets Yukon native arts and crafts.” The goals were to generate sales for Yukon native arts and crafts; to create employment and business opportunities for Yukon native craftspeople by manufacturing a line of parkas, operating retail stores and purchasing Yukon arts and crafts; to supply raw materials to Yukon craftspeople at reasonable rates; to encourage and promote Yukon native culture and craftsmanship; to generate operating profits on each component of the business; and to create goodwill for YIACC.

The co-operative was owned by shareholders, over the years the number varied from 300 to 500, who were required to be actively involved with native arts and crafts in the Yukon. In order to sell or have products on consignment the craftspeople were required to be a shareholder. Major policy decisions were made by a Board of Directors, consisting of six First Nations people from the Yukon (by 1992/93 five directors), who were elected for two year terms. YIACC had three divisions: retail, production, and administration.

There was a shortage of capital and a shortage of trained management so the Board made a decision to place all their emphasis on developing a good base in Whitehorse, and then expanding to the communities. The Board recognized the opportunity to sell native products but there was a need for a professional marketing method and a professional product development system.

The Whitehorse retail store at 105 Main Street remained open through the change from a society to a co-operative. In 1982 Kwanlin Dun needed its building on Galena Road back so YIACC leased a large building at 4230 4th Avenue to house the production centre, administrative offices and a second retail outlet. This second shop was very popular and the Main St. outlet was closed in the spring of 1984. Prior to the opening of the new production centre a group of YIACC members went on a tour of an Inuvik production centre which produced short coats. YIACC decided to make long coats, to cover that market, at the production centre in Whitehorse and short coats were initially made by co-op members in their homes.

In the mid 1980s much of the merchandise was produced by craftspeople in their own communities. People obtained materials pre-cut in the Production Centre, sewed them at home, and then returned the finished products to the store. These products included varieties of slippers, mukluks, fur hats, mitts, gauntlets, and beaded jewelry. All apparel was hand sewn from traditional materials and each product with beading had an original design. By 1985 about 500 people in the 12 Yukon communities were producing the products. Twenty-two people were employed in the Production Centre making the Yukon Parka and other coats.

At this time 80% of the merchandise was sold within the territory due to the high cost of production. Handmade items were too expensive to wholesale, and efforts were being made to lower costs. By 1986 the coats produced in the Production Centre were wholesaled to individual retail outlets across Canada and Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska.

The Yukon Parka was the most important item the Production Centre manufactured. It consisted of a water repellent outer shell and wool duffle inner coat. Every parka had leather appliqué with northern images and was trimmed with fur around the hood and hem. Also manufactured were the ¾ length Teslin parka and the Mayo jacket, a hip length coat made of stroud. Brenda Chambers, an employee and frequent model for YIACC promotional material, had the standard body proportions from which patterns for the parkas and jackets were made.

The Dawson Yukon Native Products store opened in Dawson City in the summer of 1983. In the mid 1980s YIACC moved into the Alaska market in a joint venture retail store in Anchorage called Heritage North.

In 1987 YIACC purchased the 33,000 square foot building it was leasing and occupying on 4th Avenue, Whitehorse. The co-operative only used about a third of the space so they leased the remaining space to various businesses providing a rental income to cover the mortgage payments. This same year YIACC undertook a major project to modernize and expand the Production Centre. With the assistance of the Native Economic Development Program it purchased computerized manufacturing equipment to automate the design, pattern making, cutting and delivery systems. At the same time the manufacturing area was moved to a renovated space of 10,000 square feet at the rear of the building, more than doubling the production capacity.

Unfortunately the computerized equipment, while being the state of the art in the garment industry, was not really necessary for the scope of Yukon Native Products. The cutter was only used about 10% of the time and the work mover was not suited to transporting the parkas. In addition there were difficulties in keeping trained staff to operate the equipment and having people available to service the equipment when it broke down. In the late 1980s YIACC's production goal was revised as it was unable to recruit the number of people required to operate the plant at the volume required to break even or to return a reasonable profit. The cutter and work mover were sold in the early 1990s.

YIACC had problems filling wholesale orders on time and there was no profit in the wholesale lines. In the early 1990s YIACC revised its strategy to sell all garment production from its established retail channels, including stores in Whitehorse and Dawson City, and by mail order. By not having production commitments to wholesale customers YIACC felt there would be better inventory selections for the stores.

Though retail sales were between $800,000-$1,100,000 for 3 years in the late 1980s and early 1990s, YIACC continued to operate at a loss. The costs related to developing the wholesale export market exceeded export market sales. Any profits generated from the retail operations in Whitehorse and Dawson City were negatively impacted by the losses from the export market. The rental income was used to subsidize the ongoing losses of the other Co-operative operations.

The cooperative received federal government funding from 1980 to 1992. A substantial amount of funding was used for the creation of the Production Centre and purchase of necessary equipment to create the garments efficiently. This financial assistance had the effect of detracting the management's attention from focusing on maximizing revenues and reducing costs related to the operations of the cooperative and its profitability suffered accordingly.

Due to the continuous cash flow problems in August 1995 a proposal was filed under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act which protected YIACC from its creditors until the plan to sell the building to pay creditors was accepted. YIACC operated in the meantime, but its extremely limited cash resources made it difficult to increase sales and improve the business to the point where it could sustain itself.

In December 1996 the building was sold to a consortium of First Nations who also owned the Yukon Inn. After the building was sold (the sale closed June 27, 1997) and the creditors paid, YIACC still did not have enough money to operate as a successful business and therefore faced closure unless a viable alternative could be found.

In March 1997 the only possible alternative to closure was to create a new company structure (NewCo) under a revised mission and business plan. It was unlikely they could find new investors for the old company given the difficulties of the past few years. The revised mission read, "NewCo shall be a viable business that markets and develops Yukon First Nations Arts and Crafts and thereby helps to preserve the traditional lifestyle and culture of Yukon First Nations and the skills which have been passed down for generations."

A shareholders meeting was held April 3, 1997 to update members on the situation, discuss the mission and discuss the alternative of appealing to Council of Yukon First Nations (CYFN) for support for NewCo. On April 11, Craig Cherwak, General Manager of YIACC spoke at a CYFN leadership meeting about the current situation of YIACC. CYFN generally agreed that the revised mission of NewCo was a worthwhile pursuit. CYFN felt that the arts and crafts industry was important to Yukon First Nations leadership and if there was a way to accomplish the mission in a viable manner they would be interested in reviewing such a proposal and their involvement.

For reasons unknown the development of the new company was not pursued and Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. ceased operation in October 1997. All its debts were paid but former shareholders lost their investment in YIACC.

See Appendix I, II, and III for organizational charts of Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Limited.

Scope and Content:

The fonds consists of the administrative and operational records of the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. (YIACC) from its formation in 1974 as the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society (YIACS) until its dissolution in the fall of 1997. The textual records include minutes of Board of Directors and Annual General Meetings, correspondence, financial records, reports, product catalogues, and membership records. The photographs depict shareholders (members), products and activities. The architectural drawings are of the YIACC building on 4th Avenue in Whitehorse. The records were generated by Yukon Parka (division of YIACC), 6033 Yukon Ltd. (subsidiary of YIACC), and Yukon Native Products (retail section of YIACC).

The fonds is arranged into the following six series: YIACC Board and Shareholders Records, Accounting and Financial Records, Operations, Production Centre Records, Retail Stores Records and Photographs.

Custodial History:

A total of 43.5 metres of administrative and operational records of the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. (YIACC) were taken into custody by the Economic Development Coordinator for the Yukon Government after YIACC declared bankruptcy in 1997. In 2002, 14 metres of these records were selected by Yukon Archives for possible retention.

Restrictions:

In the textual records, restrictions apply to a few records containing personal information. See Series 1, 2, and 3 for more information. Some of the photographs were taken by commercial photographers and copyright should be explored. There are no donor-imposed restrictions on the remaining material. General copyright or legal or institutional restrictions may apply.

Supplied Title Note:

Title based on provenance of fonds.

Selection Note:

The Yukon Archives based its selection on several criteria. It determined the archival value of the records according to the quality of the information about the corporate activity of the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. and the research value of a unique set of First Nations business records. See series level descriptions for more information about appraisal.

SERIES 2: ACCOUNTING AND FINANCIAL RECORDS. — 1974-1997

Physical Description:

1.5 m of textual records

Scope and Content:

The series consists of selected financial records of the Yukon Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd., and its related businesses Tena Marketing, Yukon Parka Inc., Heritage North and 6033 Yukon Ltd. The records include year-end and/or monthly general ledger listings; general ledger at sequence listings; trial balance listings; information relating to grants and loans; budget documents; bank statements; year-end inventory summaries; summary payroll information; financial year-end statements and related audit records; and financial information relating to the eventual bankruptcy of the Co-operative. The financial records are most comprehensive in the late 1980s and 1990s although there is information in varying levels of detail from 1974-1997.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on the contents of the series.

Restrictions:

Restrictions apply only to a few records containing personal information and are designated as such with an R after the file number. Individuals may be able to view restricted files that pertain to themselves. Consult the reference desk for more information.

Arrangement Note:

The records in this series are arranged physically in boxes in the order they were received and listed. File lists are in each box. In the finding aid, the files are arranged intellectually into series according to the content of the records and then chronologically within each grouping.

Selection Note:

There was a large quantity of financial records relating to YIACC and its related businesses. For the most part, financial information relating to Tena Marketing and 6033 Yukon Ltd. was found to be incorporated in the same file as the YIACC information and not kept separately. Accounting and financial records were selected if they demonstrated how YIACC and its related businesses accounted at a higher level for their revenue and expenditures and/or summarized the financial activity in a meaningful manner. Detailed information such as individual payroll files, invoices, bank statements, itemized inventory records, etc. were not retained, other than in a few cases where samples were kept. For some fiscal years it was necessary to keep more of the detailed financial information when the summary information such as a yearly general ledger was not found in the records.

SERIES 3: OPERATIONS. — 1982-1997

Physical Description:

1.2 m of textual records —3 architectural drawings

Scope and Content:

The series consists of records documenting the day-to-day operation of the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. and its related businesses Tena Marketing, Yukon Parka Inc., Heritage North and 6033 Yukon Ltd. The files date from 1982 to 1997 and appear to have been mostly created and used by the General Manager position. The records include files on property management such as rental and lease agreements; fixed asset management; personnel management; planning; promotion; product development; and sales information.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on the contents of the series.

Restrictions:

Restrictions apply only to a few records containing personal information and are designated as such with an R after the file number. Individuals may be able to view restricted files that pertain to themselves. Consult the reference desk for more information.

Arrangement Note:

The records in this series are arranged physically in boxes in the order they were received and listed. File lists are in each box. In the finding aid, the files are arranged intellectually into series according to the content of the records and then chronologically within each grouping.

Selection Note:

The majority of the records in this series were retained. Individual lease files with Yukon businesses were not kept because summary data existed in other files.

SERIES 4: PRODUCTION CENTRE RECORDS. — 1983-1995

Physical Description:

.27 m of textual records

Scope and Content:

The series consists of records relating to the Production Centre which had an international reputation for the uniqueness and quality of the Yukon Parkas and anoraks it designed and created. (There are photographs of the products created in the photographs series.) The records include files on the fabrics and materials used, costing, inventories of raw and completed goods, as well as reports on why the Production Centre was losing money and options on how to keep it going.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on the contents of the series.

Arrangement Note:

The records in this series are arranged physically in boxes in the order they were received and listed. File lists are in each box. In the finding aid, the files are arranged intellectually into series according to the content of the records and then chronologically within each grouping.

Selection Note:

The majority of the files in this series were retained although some of the more detailed inventory lists were not kept if there was a summary report.

SERIES 5: RETAIL STORES RECORDS. — 1985-1986

Physical Description:

.28 m of textual records

Scope and Content:

The series consists of records relating to the retail stores that sold the products created by the Production Centre and by the individual craftspeople who were members of the co-operative. There are files relating to the operation of the Yukon Native Product stores in Whitehorse and Dawson City, the jointly-owned store in Anchorage called Heritage North, and files relating to the products sold on behalf of Northern Images, a company from NWT that closed its Whitehorse store in the 1990s.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on the contents of the series.

Arrangement Note:

The records in this series are arranged physically in boxes in the order they were received and listed. File lists are in each box. In the finding aid, the files are arranged intellectually into series according to the content of the records and then chronologically within each grouping.

Selection Note:

The majority of the files relating to the Retail Stores were retained though detailed inventory lists were not retained when a summary document existed. Purchase orders were retained to show the depth and breadth of the product purchased.

SERIES 6: PHOTOGRAPHS. —1977–199-, predominant 1983-1987

Physical Description:

1563 photographs : 678 col. prints, 398 col. negs., 200 col. slides, 127 col. transparencies, 80 b&w prints, 73 b&w negs., 7 col. postcards

Scope and Contents:

This series contains photographs that document staff and members, products and activities of Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Co-operative Ltd. (YIACC), its predecessor Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society (YIACS), Yukon Parka (division of YIACC), Yukon Native Products (retail section of YIACC) in Whitehorse and Dawson City, and other retail outlets such as the store in Anchorage called Heritage North. Products include parkas, anoraks, Cowichan sweaters, mukluks, mittens, duffle and fur hats. The photographs are arranged into six sub-series: Albums which includes six albums, Production Centre, Retail Store, Fashion Shoots, Products, and Special Events.

Source of Supplied Title Note:

Title based on contents of the series.

Physical Description notes:

A majority of the negs are 35 mm colour and do not match any prints. There are some larger format negs.

Arrangement:

The original order of the photographs has been maintained within the six albums. However the albums were disassembled to preserve the images. Photographs in the other five sub-series were arranged by the Archivist based upon subjects within the albums and the natural order suggested by the photographs themselves.

Selection note:

Photographs were selected to demonstrate the broad scope of the products acquired and/or produced by YIACC and to document the merging of traditional and industrial sewing skills as the First Nations people moved from solo pursuits to a highly industrial setting. Duplicate and similar images were discarded. With the fashion shoots of products such as the Yukon Parka, two views were kept to best show the traditional design.

Restrictions:

There are no donor-imposed restrictions on this material. General copyright or legal or institutional restrictions may apply. Some of the photographs were taken by commercial photographers and copyright should be explored.

Finding Aid note:

Caption list is available. Original caption information was taken from photographs when supplied and from the album pages and publications in which the images appeared. Information in square brackets was provided by the Archivist. Before the albums were disassembled the pages, which contained both photographs and original textual records, were photocopied. The photocopies of the albums are found in PHO 655. The textual material is found in COR 1165, files 5 to 7.

Sub-series 1: Albums. — 1980-1986, 198-

Physical Description:

377 photographs : 358 col. prints, 19 b&w prints

Scope and Content:

The sub-series Albums consist of photographs that originally had been housed in six albums.

Photographs from Album 1 (#1 - #66) include outdoor shots of staff and members at the Yukon Indian Arts and Crafts Society (YIACS) Seventh Annual Assembly at Brook's Brook, June 13-14, 1980. Also included are photographs of products shown at trade shows, craft sales and fashion shows, general staff and work and products in office and retail stores, and the production room with women working at sewing and cutting stations.

Photographs from Album 2 (#67 - #120) include images of the Ottawa, Ontario Christmas Sale December 1981 showing the booth and products, the modeling of parkas and other products at the Native Folklore show February 1982, and the YIACC office, retail and production centre.

Photographs from Album 3 (#121 - #230) include the booth, products, and fashion show at the National Winter Showcase February 1982, Canada Day, July 1, 1981 in Ottawa (including Pierre Trudeau visiting the booth with his sons), a few images from the Native Folklore show February 1982 (similar to Album 2), and the Yukon Sourdough Rendezvous craft sale at the Old Log Church February 1982. The Sewing Centre (first production centre) at 120 Galena Road in the Kwanlin Dun (Whitehorse) Indian Village and shots during and after construction of the new retail store, office and second production centre on 4th Avenue are also included.

Photographs from Album 4 (#231 - #307) show the new retail store, office and production centre on 4th Avenue, Whitehorse and many staff photographs including the Christmas staff party held December 24, 1985. Also included are photographs of craft/trade shows, models showing parkas and a series on snowshoe making in Teslin.

Photographs from Album 5 (#308 - #367) show a meeting/gathering outdoors possibly for an annual assembly/conference, staff and co-op members, and a fashion show at Mt. McIntyre Recreational Centre in Whitehorse.

Album 6 (#368 - #377) had been set up as a memorial album for the late Clifford Geddes who was one of the founding members of YIACC and served as President of the Board of Directors until his death. The album includes many photos of Cliff in the office and at outdoor gatherings.
