About the Yukon Real Estate Report

The Yukon Bureau of Statistics first published the Yukon Real Estate Report in 1977. The report is developed from an analysis of administrative data on all real estate transactions occurring anywhere in Yukon, with the exception of "not-at-arm's-length" transactions ("not-at-arm's-length" transaction values do not reflect market prices). All single and multiple-residential property transactions, as well as commercial and industrial property sales are included.

Until Q1 2023, 'Condo' or 'Condominium' sales shown in the Yukon Real Estate Report combined 'Condominium apartment' and 'Row houses'. In 2023, this information was disaggregated to report on each type of dwelling separately: Row houses (whether they are part of a condominium corporation or not) and Condominium apartments. For more information, see the dwelling definitions on page 5.

Value of Semi-detached House Sales

Average and Median Price of Semi-detached Houses

¹ Semi-detached houses are one of two dwellings attached side by side (or back to back), but not attached to any other dwelling or structure. For more information, see the dwelling type definitions on page 5.

Condominiums in Whitehorse

Prior to 2023, 'Condo' or 'Condominium' sales shown in the Yukon Real Estate Report combined 'Condominium apartments' and 'Row houses'. In 2023, this information was disaggregated to report on each type of dwelling separately: Row houses (those part of a condominium corporation or not) and Condominium apartments. For more information, see the dwelling definitions on page 5.

Note: The average and median prices of row/town houses and condominium apartments are subject to high volatility, due mainly to the sale of multiple units within a price range in a short period as new projects are completed. The prices of these new units could have a significant effect on the average and median prices of both dwelling types.

Glossary

The following definitions are taken from Statistics Canada's Canadian Housing Survey and customized to reflect local conditions:

- Single-detached house: A single dwelling not attached to any other dwelling or structure (except its own garage or shed). A single-detached house has open space on all sides, and has no dwellings either above it or below it (other than basement or garden suites). While a mobile home is also a single-detached dwelling, they are classified in a different category (mobile home).
- Semi-detached house: One of two dwellings attached side by side (or back to back) to each other, but not attached to any other dwelling or structure (except its own garage or shed). A semi-detached dwelling has no dwellings either above it or below it, and the two units together have open space on all sides.
- Row house: One of three or more dwellings joined side by side (or occasionally side to back), such as a garden home, but not having any other dwellings either above or below. These units are also commonly known as 'Town houses'.
- Condominium apartment: A "condominium apartment" refers to a set of living quarters that is owned individually, while land and common elements are held in joint ownership with others.
- Mobile home: A "mobile home" is a single dwelling, designed and constructed to be transported on its own chassis and capable of being moved to a new location on short notice. It may be placed temporarily on a foundation pad and may be covered by a skirt.
- Other property type: An "other property type" refers to a property where the structure has a single dwelling unit in a mixed-use building and does not fall into any of the other categories, or where the structure type is unknown.
- Property with multiple residential units: A "property with multiple residential units" refers to a property containing more than one set of living quarters owned by the same owner(s), as is the case for an apartment building or a property with two or more structurally separate dwellings on the same lot.
- Vacant land: "Vacant land" refers to a property on which there are currently no residential structures, but where regulations permit that one or more residential structures can be built. Vacant land may also include land on which an existing residential structure has not yet been assessed or land on which a residential structure is present, but the land is owned by another entity (e.g. a mobile home park).
